

I went to West Palm Beach and found a really cheap motel for the night online. My friends were convinced that I'd be mugged or assaulted and so I took this series of photos to prove to them that a cheap motel could be a grand adventure! I took the 3 shots above using the camera's timer. I set the camera up on the TV set and shot photos of myself on the bed with my afternoon cuppa (in the British style, since I was in the Princess Diana Room). At home I used Photoshop Elements to merge a Panorama of the three photos which you see below, cropped, lightened, and merged.
